When Earth's rotation slows to a halt, one side burns beneath an eternal sun while the other freezes in perpetual night. Only in the twilight zone can humanity endure.

Synopsis (short)

In the year 2040, the world's energy systems collapse. HeliosCorp appears with a miraculous solution: limitless power. But salvation turns to catastrophe when it's revealed they are draining energy from Earth's spin. Days grow longer, chaos erupts, and the planet eventually stops turning.

Humanity's survival becomes a story told across the ages: ten years later, fragile settlements rise in twilight; a century later, a new civilization fights for dominance; a thousand years later, knowledge has turned into myth; and ten thousand years later, as Earth stirs again, the last remnants of mankind face extinction.
